1 Summary

Why we are consulting

- 1.1 We are consulting on a targeted proposal to make the listing regime work better for companies controlled by a shareholder that is a sovereign country. We think this will provide a route that will result in a greater number of companies exceeding the basic obligations of our standard listing regime while ensuring that the high standards of the existing premium listing regime are retained for all companies within the existing premium listing categories.

Who this applies to

- 1.2 This paper will be of interest to:
- companies listed in and considering listing in the UK
 - firms advising listed companies, sponsors, institutions offering depositary services and their advisers
 - firms or persons investing in or dealing in UK-listed securities, or advising on these investments

The wider context of this consultation

- 1.3 In Chapter 2 we explain that in February this year we published our discussion paper DP17/2 'Review of the Effectiveness of Primary Markets: The UK Primary Markets Landscape'. The DP discussed the role of listed primary markets as an important component of the broader capital markets landscape, and the structure of the UK listing regime in supporting that role. One of the issues we asked for views on was the broad question of whether our existing listing arrangements might be improved for international companies, and if so how. We are continuing to analyse feedback to the DP and considering how best to take forward this wider policy project.

What we want to change

- 1.4 We propose to amend the listing regime to include a new premium listing category. Currently premium listing is sub-divided into three categories.¹ We propose adding another. This new category will be available to commercial companies controlled by a shareholder that is a sovereign country. The investor protections common to the current premium listing (commercial company) category will apply save that the following will be disapplied for sovereign controlling shareholders:

- the related party rules
- the controlling shareholder rules

1.5 We also propose that, in addition to equity shares, the new listing category will be open to commercial companies who instead want their listing of the interests in their equity to be in the form of Depositary Receipts (DRs).²

1.6 In Chapter 3 we explain in greater detail why we are electing to bring forward at this stage this targeted proposal for reform of the categories of premium listing. We outline the reasons why we are proposing to disapply the controlling shareholder and related party transaction rules in the specific circumstances of a sovereign controlling shareholder and to extend eligibility for this category to depositary receipts.

The outcome we aim to deliver

1.7 We want to ensure that the UK's investment markets work well and that the regulatory protections for investors at the core of the listing regime are well targeted. These protections should apply where they are required to uphold the integrity of UK capital markets and protect their users. Refining the listing regime in the way we propose would make UK markets more accessible to sovereign controlled companies, while ensuring that protections remain in place where they are valued by investors.

Next steps

1.8 We welcome your views on the questions and proposals put forward in this paper. Please send your responses to us by 13 October 2017.

1.9 Use the online response form on our website or write to us at the address on page 2.

1.10 We will consider your feedback and publish our rules in a Policy Statement towards the end of the year. At the same time we will continue to progress our Review of the Effectiveness of UK Primary Markets and, should we choose to advance any other specific policy proposals as a result of the DP17/2, we will issue a further consultation paper.

² We use the description DR in this consultation paper. The technical term employed within the Listing Rules for instruments of this type is 'Certificates representing certain securities'. In the context of the proposals in this CP the technical reference is to 'Certificates representing shares'.

2 The wider context

Overview

- 2.1 In February this year we launched our discussion paper DP17/2, 'Review of the Effectiveness of Primary Markets: The UK Primary Markets Landscape'.³ It discussed the role of listed primary markets in the broader capital markets landscape, and the structure of the UK listing regime that supports this role.
- 2.2 The DP looked at the role the UK listing regime could play in supporting the growth of science and technology companies, improving debt capital markets and how it might address the needs of international companies that want to list in the UK. The paper was published together with CP17/4, 'Review of the Effectiveness of Primary Markets: Enhancements to the Listing Regime'⁴, a consultation on proposed targeted improvements to the listing regime identified during discussions with stakeholders when preparing the discussion paper.
- 2.3 We have received responses from a wide range of parties. We will continue the review we started with DP17/2 and we will summarise, in one or more documents, stakeholder feedback together with further detail about any proposed reforms. We also intend to publish a policy statement on CP17/4.
- 2.4 We had mixed responses to our question in DP17/2 about a distinct international segment. A number of negative responses were received on specific points. We noted these areas of concern from respondents and therefore at this stage we are bringing forward a more targeted proposal which we believe would make the listing regime work better for companies of a defined type, those with a substantial level of ownership by a sovereign country, while ensuring the standards of the regime remain high.
- 2.5 This consultation paper therefore sets out proposals to develop the UK listing regime so that it better addresses the circumstances of companies controlled by sovereign countries.

Summary of our proposals

- 2.6 In this paper we set out proposals to amend the listing regime to include a new premium listing category. There are currently three categories within premium listing. This new category will address commercial companies controlled by a shareholder that is a sovereign country. It would include all the investor protections that apply to companies in the existing premium listing (commercial companies) category of the UK listing regime, apart from several modifications we consider appropriate for sovereign controlled companies. As with the premium listing (commercial companies) category, the new category would have the following key investor protections:

³ <https://www.fca.org.uk/publication/discussion/dp17-02.pdf>

⁴ <https://www.fca.org.uk/publication/consultation/cp17-04.pdf>

- a requirement for a new applicant to have an audited three year revenue earning track record
- a requirement that the company's application is supported by a sponsor firm, and that the company continues to consult with a sponsor on the application of certain continuing obligations under the Listing Rules
- a requirement that the working capital statement is not qualified
- the requirement for a new applicant to demonstrate that it will be carrying on an independent business as its main activity, and that it has strategic control over its business
- related party rules governing transactions between the listed company and directors, substantial shareholders or their associates
- rules governing significant transactions (e.g. shareholder approval will continue to be required for class 1 transactions including in relation to transactions with the sovereign controlling shareholder) and the buying back of shares
- controlling shareholder provisions in respect of such shareholders that are not the sovereign controlling shareholder

2.7 We also have a general power under s75(5) of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (FSMA) to refuse an application for listing if, for a reason relating to the issuer, we consider that granting it would be detrimental to the interests of investors.

2.8 However, we propose two important modifications:

- the related party rules will be modified for companies in this new category: a sovereign controlling shareholder will not be considered a related party for the purposes of the Listing Rules
- The controlling shareholder rules will not apply to companies in the new category in respect of the sovereign controlling shareholder.

2.9 The related party and controlling shareholder rules would continue to apply in full to existing listed companies in the premium listing (commercial companies) category. The few existing listed companies in this category that would be eligible for the new category would be entitled to apply to transfer their listing to take advantage of these new rules. However, a vote of independent shareholders would be required in order to do so. By this we mean the sovereign controlling shareholder (and any other controlling shareholders) would not be permitted to participate in the vote.

2.10 We also propose that, for the first time, premium listing in this new category will be available to companies who want the listing of interests in their equity to be in the form of depositary receipts (DRs). The new category will provide the basis on which this can happen. New provisions are included which, in essence, aim to ensure the rights (and in some cases obligations) attaching to the underlying class of equity share must 'pass through' to the DR holders. For example, whilst a vote required on a significant transaction under LR10 will be carried out at the level of the underlying class of equity share, the voting rights must pass through to DR holders so that they would be able to exercise those rights as if they were holders of the underlying shares. The issuer of the underlying shares will be treated as the issuer of the securities for the purposes of the Listing Rules.

2.11 Creating this new category would provide an appropriate regime within premium listing to meet the requirements of commercial entities that are sovereign controlled and would be of likely interest to cross-border investors. We believe that this type of issuer could be discouraged from listing in the premium listing category without our proposed changes and also that there is enough interest for premium listing from this type of applicant to justify the change. Aside from the eligibility of DR issuers, the two principal points of difference between the new category and the existing premium listing (commercial companies) category relate to important areas of investor protection. However, we think investors should be able to assess how the relationship with the sovereign state and its government will influence a sovereign controlled company's prospects. The wider regime of disclosure and transparency requirements that will apply provides the appropriate level of disclosure to ensure investors can make that assessment.

2.12 Regulatory protections for investors lie at the core of the listing regime. However, it is important that these protections remain well-targeted, and imposed only where needed to uphold the integrity of UK capital markets and protect their users. Refining the listing regime in the way we propose would make UK markets more accessible to sovereign controlled companies while ensuring that relevant protections remain in place where they are valued by investors. Currently, issuers that do not want or are unable to meet all the requirements of premium listing can apply for standard listing. The new category provides sovereign controlled commercial companies that cannot or do not wish to satisfy the rules in respect of controlling shareholders and related party transactions as they would relate to the sovereign controlling shareholder, but wish to demonstrate that they meet the other premium listing requirements, the opportunity to do so without forgoing access to the premium segment. We think that encouraging companies to satisfy the other elements of the premium listing regime will benefit investors. We therefore consider that our proposals will ensure that the protections of our premium listing regime are well-targeted and proportionate and so will advance our consumer protection and market integrity objectives.

2.13 We are setting out the proposed changes to the Listing Rules in the draft instrument in Appendix 1. The draft instrument is based on the Listing Rules as they are proposed to be amended by the draft instrument set out in CP17/4 – Review of the Effectiveness of Primary Markets: Enhancements to the Listing Regime.

How our proposals meet our objectives

2.14 These proposals are compatible with the FCA's strategic objective of ensuring that the relevant markets function well.⁵ They address the gap in the market in respect of companies with characteristics of the type that will determine eligibility for the proposed new listing category.

Market integrity

2.15 Our proposals advance our operational objective of protecting and enhancing the integrity of the UK financial system by consulting on a targeted proposal to make the listing regime work better for companies controlled by a shareholder that is a sovereign country. They address the gap in the market in respect of companies with characteristics of the type that will determine eligibility for the proposed new listing category. We think this will provide a route that will result in a greater number of companies exceeding the basic obligations of our standard listing regime while ensuring that the high standards of the existing premium listing regime are retained for all companies within the existing premium listing categories.

⁵ For the purposes of this strategic objective, 'relevant markets' are defined by s. 1F FSMA

Consumer protection

- 2.16 Our proposals also advance our operational objective of securing an appropriate degree of protection for consumers by ensuring this is well-targeted. This paper also builds upon DP17/2's 'Review of the Effectiveness of UK Primary Markets'. As with that paper, this consultation paper will be of interest to consumers who deal and invest in UK-listed securities.

Equality and diversity considerations

- 2.17 We have considered the potential equality and diversity issues of the proposals in this Consultation Paper.
- 2.18 Overall, we do not consider that the proposals in this CP adversely impact any of the groups with protected characteristics i.e. age, disability, sex, marriage or civil partnership, pregnancy and maternity, race, religion and belief, sexual orientation and gender reassignment.
- 2.19 We will continue to consider the equality and diversity implications of the proposals during the consultation period, and will revisit them when publishing the final rules.
- 2.20 In the interim, we welcome any input to this consultation on these issues.

3 Our proposed new premium listing category for sovereign controlled companies

- 3.1 In DP17/2 we discussed, among other things, how the listing regime caters for large overseas companies. The responses we received about a distinct international segment in DP17/2 highlight a diversity of opinion among interested parties. Areas of stakeholder concern included the need to maintain standards in premium listing and avoid introducing lower standards of regulation on the grounds of nationality.
- 3.2 At this stage we are bringing forward a more targeted proposal which we think would make the listing regime work better for a particular type of companies, while ensuring the standards of the regime remain high. We are, accordingly, proposing a new premium listing category designed to cater for companies controlled by a shareholder that is a sovereign country. Box 1 explains further what a listing category is.

Box 1: Listing categories explained

The listing regime is divided into premium and standard listing. These segments are then further sub-divided into individual categories. As DP17/2 explains, there are currently three premium listing categories and five standard listing categories.

The requirements for the five standard listing categories stem broadly from the applicable framework of EU directives. They are consistent with regulatory frameworks for listed securities across the EU.

The premium listing categories build on those requirements by adding certain 'super-equivalent' rules. These require issuers to meet additional conditions and, in the case of admission criteria, a greater degree of business maturity.

The main premium listing category for commercial companies is called 'Premium listing (Commercial Companies)'. Its requirements include being able to demonstrate that the company carries on an independent business, has a three-year revenue earning track record, sufficient working capital and unqualified financial statements.

The individual categories set out specific requirements for different company or security types. Each category is essentially a separate set of obligations that apply to an issuer of securities as a result of the security being listed. Investors and issuers know which obligations apply to the issuer's listing because the relevant category is shown against the particular entry on the Official List.

In certain circumstances, issuers can apply to the FCA to have their listing re-categorised. As a result, their obligations under the Listing Rules will change. We will allow a re-categorisation as long as the issuer's securities are eligible for inclusion in the new category and they comply with the processes required by the relevant listing rules.

Why address sovereign controlled companies now?

- 3.3 We think this type of company is sufficiently distinctive to justify a modified set of arrangements within the listing regime. Over the past decade we have given careful consideration to the appropriate treatment of companies with controlling shareholders within the premium listing regime. We have introduced Handbook provisions to address the circumstances of listing of companies with controlling shareholders. We believe that we arrived at a set of arrangements that commands broad support from stakeholders. However, this did not specifically address the potential impact on companies that are sovereign controlled or on the sovereign controlling shareholders.
- 3.4 Sovereign owners tend to be different from private sector individuals or entities in both their motivations and their nature, i.e. in terms of their structure and the extent of their activities. Sovereign states may own enterprises for historic reasons, among others, for example, as a result of government bailouts or nationalisation policies or because the enterprise carries out activities of strategic importance to the state. The responsibilities and scope of the sovereign entity's involvement in these enterprises may sometimes be of a statutory nature. Additionally, a sovereign state's interests may be pursued through many entities and across a broad range of activities.
- 3.5 The current listing regime does not, in some respects, easily accommodate issuers with sovereign controlling shareholders, because of the different nature of a sovereign owner as opposed to private sector individuals or entities. Although the group of sovereign controlled commercial companies is not likely to be large numerically, their likely market value, for example arising from major privatisation transactions, is large enough to justify creating a new regime category.
- 3.6 We are therefore proposing a targeted set of changes to the regime. We are bringing these forward ahead of other possible proposals from our review of the effectiveness of the listing regime. We are doing so because we think it is clear there is a gap in the market in this area and because there are benefits in consulting on these changes promptly, to ensure that our regulatory framework has well targeted provisions and provides appropriate choices for those seeking a listing for their equity.
- 3.7 We believe that investors and the market are sufficiently able to assess the additional risks arising from sovereign ownership. Those making decisions to invest in the securities of sovereign controlled issuers will wish to do so taking into account the nature of the sovereign owner. By introducing a separate premium listing category we will ensure investors are able to differentiate those companies listed in this category and subject therefore to slightly different rules from other premium listed issuers.

Overview of the proposed new premium listing category

- 3.8 Our proposed new premium listing category will be based on the existing premium listing (commercial companies) category. It will include the full suite of investor protection that applies there, apart from two modifications we consider appropriate for companies eligible for the new category. This suite of investor protections includes our general power as competent authority for listing under s75(5) of FSMA to refuse an application for listing if we consider that granting it would be detrimental to the interests of investors. This would be for a reason relating to the issuer. This power provides an important protection enabling the authority to refuse a listing in order to protect investors in appropriate cases.

3.9 The two important proposed modifications, which are explained in greater detail below, are:

- the related party rules will operate on a modified basis: the sovereign controlling shareholder will not be considered a related party for the purposes of the UK Listing Rules
- the controlling shareholder rules will not apply to companies in the new category in respect of the sovereign controlling shareholder

3.10 We propose an appropriate definition of a “State” for the purpose of identifying which companies have shareholders that provide eligibility for the proposed new category. The State which is the sovereign controlling shareholder must be recognised by the UK government as a state at the time the application is made.

3.11 In essence, when assessing eligibility for this new category we will look at the substantive control being exercised by the State on a case by case basis. We are unlikely to agree that a passive stake held by a sovereign wealth fund would demonstrate substantive control by the State. However, we would assess the question of control on the facts specific to an application at the time it is made.

3.12 We also propose that, for the first time, premium listing will also be open to companies who wish to list depositary receipts over their equity shares. The new category will set out a basis on which this can happen.

3.13 We propose that all companies listed in the new category will have to comply in full with DTR4 (periodic financial reporting), DTR5 (vote holder and issuer notification rules) and DTR 6 (continuing obligations and access to information). We also propose that all companies in the new category will have to comply with DTR 7.2 (corporate governance statement) and with the existing requirements under LR 9.8.6 R (5) and (6) which require them to report on their application of the principles and relevant provisions of the UK Corporate Governance Code.⁶ For the avoidance of doubt, the requirements around disclosure of inside information under Article 17 of the Market Abuse Regulation will apply to companies in the new category. In relation to a listing of DRs, the issuer of the underlying equity shares will be subject to these requirements.

3.14 The fact that this proposal would be implemented by creating a new listing category is important. The current protections of investors in companies that are already listed will therefore not change unless the company transfers to a different listing category. It means the new rules would only apply to companies that apply for and are granted a listing in the new category, having met the applicable criteria.

3.15 As we explain in detail below, we propose that the criteria for the new category be more tightly drawn than for the existing premium (commercial companies) category. This means very few of these companies will be eligible for the new category. However, companies with existing listings under other categories that do meet the new category criteria would be able to apply to us to have their listing transferred into the new category. In the case of a move from the existing premium listing (commercial companies) category, this would be conditional on the company getting the approval of their independent shareholders. We think this is an important protection that will ensure that the existing protections of independent shareholders under the Listing Rules only change with their consent.

3.16 In developing these proposals we decided it was appropriate to create a new category with tailored requirements. We have chosen not to modify the related party rules, controlling shareholder rules and provisions relating to depositary receipts (DRs) in the regime in a way that mean the modifications would apply more generally to companies in the premium (commercial companies) category. We are not currently persuaded that a more widely available concession would have the full support of users of the listing regime. However, we welcome stakeholders' views on whether that would be a better way of effecting the changes.

- Q1: Do you agree with the overall proposal outlined in this paper of creating a premium listing category for sovereign controlled commercial companies?
- Q2: Do you agree that the changes proposed are best effected through the addition of a new listing category?

Key elements of the proposed new listing category

3.17 We explain the key elements of the proposed new listing category that would differ from the current premium listing requirements in greater detail below. In summary, they are:

- Admission criteria that are designed to define the population of companies eligible for admission to the new category. The criteria would also set out the conditions these companies must comply with in order to be listed in the new category.
- Changes to the application of the related party rules.
- Companies in the new category will not be subject, in respect of the sovereign controlling shareholder, to the controlling shareholder rules applicable in the premium listing (commercial companies) category.
- DRs over equity shares as well as equity shares will be eligible to be listed in the new category, and
- There will be provisions governing the transfer of companies in and out of the category.

3.18 We provide a draft instrument which sets out the proposed changes to the Handbook in Annex 1.

Eligibility criteria

3.19 As this is to be a premium listing category, companies seeking admission will have to comply with a suite of 'super-equivalent' requirements, as well as all of the directive-minimum requirements⁷ set out in LR2. As we have explained, the new category will have most of the features of the existing premium listing (commercial companies) category with a small number of differences.

Control threshold

- 3.20 An important aspect of the new category is the key definition 'sovereign controlled commercial company'. We are proposing to restrict eligibility for the new category to companies with a shareholder that is a sovereign country which controls 30% or more of the voting rights of the company. For a listing of DRs, the 30% figure is calculated on the basis of voting rights attaching to underlying equity shares. The State which is the sovereign controlling shareholder must be recognised by the UK government as a state at the time the application is made.
- 3.21 In proposing this important threshold is set at 30% are aligning the concept of control largely with the existing definition of 'controlling shareholder' under the LR6⁸ provisions. Among other things, this definition imposes a 'bright line' threshold of control of at least 30% of the voting rights in the premium listed company. It is also the threshold that the Takeover Panel uses for its obligation on parties buying shares that will raise their holding to or above 30% to make a Rule 9 mandatory offer.⁹ However, there may be a case for specifying the eligibility criterion for admission to this category at a higher level, perhaps most obviously so that it applies only above the 50% level, which for example under Takeover Code criteria provides the substantive bright line for demonstrating control, and we would appreciate views on this alternative course of action.
- 3.22 Eligibility for a listing of DRs would require that the DR holders can exercise the votes attaching to their underlying equity in the company. This upholds our listing rule requirements that premium listing is not available for equity securities that do not confer full voting rights.

Q3: Do you agree that the threshold for control should be set at 30%?

Nationality issues

- 3.23 We have also considered carefully whether, and if so how, we should restrict eligibility for the new category based on the jurisdiction where the company is incorporated or the national identity of the sovereign controlling shareholder. We have identified the new category as being particularly useful for overseas companies seeking to list cross-border. We do not see the new category as being of evident value for UK companies. However, we also do not see a principled case for restricting eligibility to those companies whose sovereign controlling shareholder is an overseas state and so we do not propose this.
- 3.24 In practice, a sovereign controlled company would be likely to be incorporated in that sovereign's jurisdiction. However, distinguishing by country of incorporation does raise other more complex issues. Where companies incorporated in the sovereign's jurisdiction do not adhere in full to national governance and regulatory standards

⁷ The Consolidated Admissions and Reporting Directive No. 2001/34/EC contains relevant provisions in this regard.

⁸ LR 6.1.2A R provides, subject to detailed clarifications over the calculation of voting rights that "A "controlling shareholder" means any person who exercises or controls on their own or together with any person with whom they are acting in concert, 30% or more of the votes able to be cast on all or substantially all matters at general meetings of the company."

⁹ The Panel on Takeovers and Mergers: The Takeover Code
<http://www.thetakeoverpanel.org.uk/wp-content/uploads/2008/11/code.pdf>

this may raise concerns, particularly for domestic investors. For UK-incorporated companies the consequent focus would then be on the views of UK investors. In principle, though, the case for not restricting eligibility to non-UK incorporated companies is much the same as the case for avoiding distinguishing on grounds of national identity of the controlling shareholder. As a result, our proposals do not restrict eligibility based on country of incorporation.

- 3.25 Nationality issues are relevant also in the context of index inclusion such as the FTSE UK series. The FTSE indices are owned and operated by FTSE International Ltd and are not the responsibility of the FCA. Under FTSE rules, companies must be included in the premium list in order to be included in the FTSE UK index series. However, an issuer in the proposed new premium listing category would also have to satisfy other criteria, including nationality criteria. Issuers that are neither incorporated, nor have their primary listing, in the UK would not be eligible under the rules set out by FTSE. This means that premium listing would not be expected to lead to inclusion in the UK series for most companies of the type that might wish to list in the proposed category under FTSE's current rules.

Q4: Do you agree that eligibility for the new category should not be restricted on grounds of national identity of the controlling shareholder? Do you agree that it should also not be restricted on grounds of country of incorporation of the company?

Protections for investors

- 3.26 For the purposes of assessing eligibility for premium listing under the new category, the sovereign controlling shareholder will not be deemed to be a 'controlling shareholder' as defined by the Listing Rules, meaning the controlling shareholder rules will not apply.
- 3.27 However, all other LR6 eligibility requirements will continue to apply to the applicant. This includes, but is not limited to, the requirement to have an audited three year revenue earning track record, which is representative of the applicant's business, and an unqualified working capital statement.
- 3.28 The requirement that the applicant can demonstrate that it will be carrying on an independent business as its main activity will continue to be a key consideration when determining whether an applicant is eligible for the proposed listing category. This requirement applies whether or not the applicant has a controlling shareholder. The proposed redrafting of LR6 as set out in CP17/4 – Review of the Effectiveness of Primary Markets: Enhancements to the Listing Regime sets out the corresponding proposed rules and guidance in LR6.4 (Independent business) and LR6.5 (Controlling shareholders).
- 3.29 As discussed in more detail below, we are proposing that, for companies listed in the new category, the controlling shareholder provisions will not apply in respect of the sovereign controlling shareholder and therefore the provisions in LR6.5 would not apply. However, we have specifically included guidance in the draft instrument for the new listing rule chapter clarifying that, in addition to the factors listed in the proposed guidance in LR6.4.3G, the granting of, or the requirement to grant, security over its business in connection with the funding of the sovereign controlling shareholder is a factor which may indicate an applicant does not carry on an independent business. Whilst this guidance is currently set out in the proposed LR6.5.3G, we are proposing to include it in the guidance relevant for the proposed LR6.4.1R, as it is nonetheless a factor which we would consider when assessing if an applicant for this new category carries on an independent business. It should be noted that in any case the factors set out in the guidance in LR6.4.3G are non-exhaustive and we may take other factors into consideration when determining whether an applicant is carrying on an independent business as its main activity.

- 3.30 Finally, as we note above, our proposals provide that any application by an existing premium listed company that meets the definition of a sovereign controlled company to transfer to the proposed new listing category would be subject to the approval by a vote of the independent shareholders.

Q5: Do you agree that independent shareholder approval should be required for a transfer from an existing premium listing into the new category?

Modified related party rules

- 3.31 The related party rules¹⁰ are an important shareholder protection within the premium listing regime. In particular, they provide for the scrutiny and approval by independent shareholders of transactions and arrangements between listed companies and their 'related parties' (their directors and substantial shareholders, or associates of directors and substantial shareholders). Under the related party rules, a listed company proposing to enter into a related party transaction must obtain prior approval for the transaction through a vote of independent shareholders. That approval is obtained on the basis of information set out in a shareholder circular explaining the transaction to shareholders and includes an opinion from the board, supported by a sponsor firm, that the terms of the transaction are 'fair and reasonable' so far as the shareholders are concerned.
- 3.32 The related party rules provide a number of exemptions for different transactions and arrangements, including exemptions based on the size of the transaction and its type. They also provide for modified requirements for what are classified as 'smaller related party transactions' in the Listing Rules. Currently, under these modified requirements, no prior shareholder approval is required and instead the company obtains a 'fair and reasonable' opinion from its sponsor, and makes an announcement giving details of the transaction. The related party rules are not applicable to companies in the standard listing segment.
- 3.33 Our proposed modification is that, for companies in the new category of the listing regime, the sovereign controlling shareholder would not be considered a related party for the purposes of the UK listing regime. This means none of the related party rules will apply to transactions between the listed company and the sovereign controlling shareholder and/or its associates (as defined by the Listing Rules). All other aspects of the related party rules would remain in respect of any other parties that would otherwise be covered by the definition of a related party. So, for example, a transaction between the listed company and any of its directors (including any director who may have been appointed by the sovereign controlling shareholder) or with any other substantial shareholder would still be treated as a related party transaction.

10 Listing Rules Chapter 11. <https://www.handbook.fca.org.uk/handbook/LR/11/?view=chapter>

- 3.34 Our proposed change recognises the fact that sovereign countries are very different entities from private-sector shareholders and are unlikely to have the same set of motivations as private-sector investors.
- 3.35 When making an investment in a sovereign controlled company, an investor is making a judgement about how the sovereign will interact with that company. Capital markets, many of whose participants have extensive experience of investing in sovereign securities, understand this and are well-positioned to assess the relevant sovereign and jurisdictional risks.
- 3.36 We think, therefore, it is justifiable and realistic to take a different approach where there is a sovereign controlling shareholder. Sovereign controlled companies seeking to expand their international investor base are likely to have extensive and complex relationships with the sovereign controlling shareholder. They may, therefore, be deterred from listing in the UK by rules treating them the same as other shareholders, and which are over and above those in other international centres.
- 3.37 It should also be noted that, in addition to the related party rules in the UK listing regime, a range of disclosure and transparency rules apply and will do so within the proposed new category. In common with all other companies admitted to trading on regulated markets, companies in the new category will be required to meet the obligations set out in the EU Market Abuse Regulation (MAR)¹¹, including regarding disclosure of inside information. To the extent that the existence of a related-party type of transaction would be inside information, this information would be disclosable even in the absence of specific related party requirements. The requirements of international accounting standards will continue to provide after-the-event transparency and accountability that will complement that provided at-the-time through MAR-related controls and disclosure.

Q6: Do you agree that the sovereign controlling shareholder should not be considered a related party for the purposes of the Listing Rules?

Q7: Do you agree that MAR-mandated disclosures are sufficient to secure the necessary at-the-time transparency?

No controlling shareholder rules

- 3.38 The controlling shareholder rules¹² were introduced to the premium listing (commercial companies) category in May 2014 to provide appropriate protections for minority shareholders where the company has a controlling shareholder (which we define primarily by whether a person exercises or controls 30% or more of the voting rights that can be cast at general meetings of the company).
- 3.39 These provisions comprise two main elements:
- election of independent directors – a requirement that the applicant company's constitution provides for the election and re-election of independent directors subject to approval via votes of both all shareholders and, voting separately, all independent shareholders

¹¹ Regulation No 596/2014/EU

¹² These are contained within LR6 relating to criteria governing admission to premium listing and LR9 relating to continuing obligations.

- controlling shareholder agreements – a requirement that the applicant enters into a written and legally binding agreement with any controlling shareholder intended to ensure that the controlling shareholder does not abuse its controlling shareholding in the applicant company to the detriment of other shareholders (see Box 2)

3.40 However, the debates leading to the introduction of these provisions did not specifically address the impact on companies that are sovereign controlled or the impact on the sovereign controlling shareholders. Nor did they address the different criteria that investors may employ in assessing sovereign risk given the significance of the sovereign's track record and the incentives it faces to maintain its credibility in this regard.

3.41 We are therefore sceptical about the usefulness of the controlling shareholder rules when applied to a situation whereby the controlling shareholder is a sovereign country. We consider that capital markets participants collectively are capable of assessing directly the influence of a sovereign shareholder on a company's risks and prospects rather than needing to rely on legal or regulatory protections that otherwise provide valuable safeguards for private sector companies with significant shareholder relationships. We also note that under Section 75(5) of FSMA, we have the power to refuse an application for listing if, for a reason relating to the issuer, we consider that granting it would be detrimental to the interests of investors.

3.42 We are therefore proposing that, for companies listed in this new category, the controlling shareholder provisions will not apply in respect of the sovereign controlling shareholder. In circumstances where there was another shareholder captured within the definition of 'controlling shareholder', the controlling shareholder provisions would apply to that shareholder.

3.43 However, we are proposing to maintain the current requirement for a vote by independent shareholders on the decision to apply for a cancellation of a premium listing or where the listed company is proposing to transfer to a standard listing, in circumstances where there is a controlling shareholder, be it a sovereign controlling shareholder or otherwise. In the case of a listing of DRs, only independent DR holders would be entitled to vote on a proposal to transfer listing category or cancel the listing. For the avoidance of doubt, the holders of the underlying shares would not be entitled to vote on proposals to transfer listing category or cancel the listing, but would be entitled to vote on all other matters for which a shareholder vote is required under the Listing Rules.

Q8: Do you agree that the controlling shareholder provisions should not apply in respect of the sovereign controlling shareholder for companies listed in this category?

Box 2: Controlling shareholder agreements explained

The existing premium (commercial companies) rules require that the written agreement the applicant and controlling shareholder should conclude must cover, as a minimum, three areas:

- First, the agreement should contain undertakings that transactions and arrangements between the listed company and the controlling shareholder (and/or any of its associates) should be conducted at arm's length and on normal commercial terms.
- Second, it should contain undertakings that neither the controlling shareholder nor any of its associates will take actions that would have the effect of preventing the listed company from complying with its obligations under the Listing Rules.
- Third, it should contain undertakings that neither the controlling shareholder nor any of its associates will propose or procure the proposal of a shareholder resolution that is intended or appears to be intended to circumvent the proper application of the Listing Rules.

Where a premium listed company subject to the rules cannot or will not enter into such an agreement, or where the company or the shareholder is not in compliance with such an agreement, it will be subject to an 'enhanced oversight regime'. Under these arrangements, related party transactions between company and controlling shareholder cannot qualify for any of the exemptions (for example, for size of transactions) set out in the Listing Rules, meaning that independent shareholder approval would be required for all transactions between listed company and controlling shareholder.

Depository Receipts

- 3.44 We are also proposing that, for the first time, depository receipts (DRs) over equity shares would be eligible for this proposed new category of premium listing on the same basis as equity shares. This would be permitted provided that holders of the DRs enjoy the rights attaching to the underlying shares and the underlying shares would be eligible for premium listing. This route to premium listing would only be available in the proposed new category and not generally.
- 3.45 DRs are not currently eligible for premium listing, principally because we have not previously perceived there to be demand for this and so no rules to support premium listing of DRs have been developed. However, we consider that potential issuers wishing to comply fully with premium listing standards as tailored for this category may reasonably wish to have their equity admitted to listing in DR form and potential investors might, in some cases, have a preference to hold interests in overseas issuers eligible for this category in that form.
- 3.46 We are, therefore, proposing to allow DRs to be listed in this new category, but subject to all relevant premium listing provisions relating to equity shares also extending to DRs. For the purposes of drafting the proposed rules we have deemed the issuer of the underlying equity shares as being the issuer of the securities to which the rules will apply. The DRs will also need to be admitted to trading on a regulated market.
- 3.47 The high standards of corporate governance that premium listing requirements are designed to support are also underpinned by accountability to shareholders who in turn are able to exercise their voting rights. For all shareholder votes required under the Listing Rules, the vote must be a vote of the holders of the underlying equity shares, save for votes in relation to proposals to transfer listing category or cancel the listing, which would require the approval of the independent DR holders. However, we would require a full 'pass through' of voting rights to DR holders. This would ensure that DR holders will be able to exercise their voting entitlements as if they were holders of the underlying shares.

- 3.48 Issuers would be required to ensure that there is a vote held by the company in all circumstances where the premium listing rules require these (such as for class 1 transactions under LR Chapter 10), and that DR holders would have the full voting power implied by their proportionate equity interest in the company and the votes will be exercised to reflect the DR holders' instructions.
- 3.49 All other rights afforded as a result of the premium listing will be required to 'pass through' to the DR holders as if they were the holders of the underlying equity shares. For example, the rights relating to a rights issue or open offer or in relation to participation in a share buyback. The issuer must ensure that shareholder documentation required under the Listing Rules, e.g. a shareholder circular, is provided to the DR holders as well to the holders of the underlying equity shares.
- 3.50 If an issuer wishes to seek a premium listing of DRs within this category, the Premium Listing Principles set out in LR7 will apply to the issuer and to the underlying equity shares (notwithstanding that these may not be listed), as well as transparency obligations under the DTRs.
- 3.51 The Prospectus Rules do not mandate the inclusion of a working capital statement in a prospectus when seeking admission of DRs to the Official List. As the ability to provide a working capital statement which is unqualified will be an eligibility requirement when seeking admission to this new category, if the issuer chooses not to include a working capital statement within its prospectus it will be required to publish this statement via an announcement.
- 3.52 For the avoidance of doubt, the requirement that the company's application is supported by a sponsor firm and that the company continues to consult with a sponsor on the application of certain continuing obligations under the Listing Rules will apply in relation to the premium listing of DRs.

Q9: Do you agree that DRs over equity shares should be eligible for this category?

Q10: Do you agree that full pass-through of voting and other rights on the basis described should be a requirement for eligibility of DRs for listing in the proposed category?

What happens when the sovereign country exits its controlling position?

- 3.53 In the event that the sovereign controlling shareholder ceases to hold at least 30% of the voting rights of the company, the rationale for the differing treatment under the rules falls away. Therefore we are proposing provisions which address this scenario. In these circumstances the company will be required to notify us of that fact. We would expect the company would then wish to discuss a transfer of listing category with the FCA.
- 3.54 Given that such issuers will already be complying with all relevant provisions of premium listing other than the controlling shareholder and related party provisions in relation to the sovereign controlling shareholder, they may be able to transition easily to the existing premium listing category for commercial companies if their listing is of shares. Alternatively, it could transfer to a standard listing or cancel its listing subject to independent shareholder approval. If shareholders vote against the resolution to transfer or cancel listing in a scenario where there is no longer a sovereign controlling shareholder the FCA will have the ability to suspend and cancel the listing as the issuer will no longer be eligible for inclusion in this category.

- 3.55 A shareholder vote will not be required if an issuer of shares wishes to transfer from a listing in this category to a premium listing commercial company listing under LR6 as the protections afforded to shareholders under that category will increase, i.e. the controlling shareholder and related party requirements will apply in full.
- 3.56 A company with DRs admitted to listing in this category would have to transfer to a standard listing or cancel its listing. However, in line with our existing premium protections, any resolution to transfer or cancel the listing of DRs from this category must be voted upon by the independent holders of the listed DRs. If DR holders vote against the resolution to transfer or cancel listing in a scenario where there is no longer a sovereign controlling shareholder the FCA will have the ability to suspend and cancel the listing as the issuer will no longer be eligible for inclusion in this category.
- 3.57 To maintain the integrity and smooth functioning of this aspect of the regime we are proposing to include a continuing obligation for companies in this category that requires them to have a sovereign controlling shareholder. As noted above there will also be a notification requirement where a company no longer complies with this continuing obligation. The lack of a sovereign controlling shareholder would constitute a breach of a continuing obligation, and therefore the FCA will have the ability to suspend and cancel the listing under LR5.1 and LR5.2 in the unlikely event that no proposal to recategorise the listing of the issuer is forthcoming.

Other changes

- 3.58 The introduction of the proposed new premium listing category would require consequential changes to the existing Listing Rules, as well as the addition of a proposed new Chapter (Chapter 21) setting out the rules which would be applicable to the new category. The principal changes to the existing Listing Rules would be to Chapters 1, 5, 7 and 8 of the Listing Rules. The introduction of the new listing category would also require consequential changes to certain other parts of the Handbook, more detail on which is provided below.
- 3.59 We are proposing to update the Fees manual to include applications for eligibility for listing of equity shares and certificates representing shares in the proposed new category in the Category A4 fee category in FEES 3 Annex 12 R (UKLA transaction fees) and to reflect the proposed premium listing for certificates representing shares in the periodic fees table in FEES 4 Annex 14R.
- 3.60 We are proposing also to review technical and procedural notes within the UK Listing Authority knowledge base, and relevant forms and we will consult on consequential amendments in due course.

Q11: Do you agree with the proposed consequential changes to the Listing Rules and to the Fees manual set out in Appendix 1?

These proposals and our ongoing review

- 3.61 Our proposals here represent an early output from our review of the effectiveness of primary markets. We are bringing these forward now because the gap in the market is clearer in the case of sovereign controlled companies. However, we want to ensure that we provide appropriate routes for listing for all categories of potential issuers on a basis that will be attractive to investors. We will explain our developing thinking when we take forward the policy initiatives of DP17/2.

Annex 2

Cost-benefit analysis

Introduction

1. FSMA, as amended by the Financial Services Act 2012, requires us to publish a cost-benefit analysis (CBA) of our proposed rules. Specifically, section 138I requires us to publish a CBA of proposed rules, defined as 'an analysis of the costs, together with an analysis of the benefits that will arise if the proposed rules are made'.
2. This analysis presents estimates of the significant impacts of our proposal. We provide monetary values for the impacts where we believe it is reasonably practicable to do so. For others, we provide estimates of outcomes in other dimensions. Our proposals are based on carefully weighing up these multiple dimensions and reaching a judgement about the appropriate level of consumer protection, taking into account all the other impacts we foresee.

Our proposals

3. As explained in this CP, we propose creating a new category within premium listing to make further provision for the listing of sovereign controlled companies. The aim of this change is to take reasonable account of the basis on which such companies are controlled and governed, with corresponding rules that differ in some respects to those pertaining to other premium listed issuers.
4. In summary, our proposals would have the following effect:
 - provide an appropriately tailored regime within premium listing for the requirements of commercial entities that are sovereign controlled
 - allow, for the first time, DRs in respect of equity shares to be eligible for premium listing on the same basis as equity shares in this listing category.

Assessing the benefits and costs

5. The above proposals do not change the regulatory requirements on companies with an existing premium or standard listing. They serve only to create a new category within premium listing for issuers that meet the relevant criteria for admission. By the nature of the proposed change, flexibility would be provided to qualifying companies to gain a premium listing if they complied with the modified requirements, but would not otherwise be able to meet the required standard. Because of this, companies that met the relevant criteria would only have additional costs if they chose to use this route to gain a premium listing. Additionally, they would still be able to apply for a standard listing – a choice for the issuer’s management based on the perceived commercial benefits of premium listing and the associated costs of complying with the corresponding regulatory requirements. Conversely, any potential costs to investors deriving from companies that follow the modified requirements, would depend on the nature and number of companies that take advantage of the new route to premium listing.

6. It is not reasonably practicable to quantify the number of companies that may obtain a listing in the new category and their benefits from doing so. Therefore our subsequent analysis of the costs and benefits of the proposals is qualitative.

Benefits

7. We recognise that the companies that may seek admission to the new category may vary greatly in nature and size. The benefit to any company that chooses to pursue such a listing would very much depend on their specific circumstances. The anticipated benefits may involve, among other things, the impact on the company’s cost of capital, its management’s aim to increase the company’s visibility in the markets, and the broadening of the company’s set of potential investors.
8. These benefits could potentially vary significantly and applying to list in the new category is purely optional for those companies that meet its criteria. This means that we do not believe it is reasonably practicable to provide an estimate of the total benefits that may be obtained. Nevertheless, at best the new rules offer relevant companies a new way to pursue these benefits and, at worst, an option that they choose not to use.
9. From a competition perspective, companies from different sectors of the real economy should be able to access the listed equity market under similar conditions. However, we think this group of companies is sufficiently distinct to merit a modified set of arrangements within the listing regime. Private sector individuals or entities are motivated by different considerations from those that motivate sovereign countries. Those who invest in the securities of sovereign controlled issuers will do so, in part, on the basis of assessing their confidence in the treatment of other investors by the sovereign entity as much as through specific legal or regulatory protections. Capital markets and their participants have long experience of making assessments of the associated risks. Indeed, to the extent that the majority of operating assets of a sovereign controlled commercial entity are located in the sovereign entity’s territory, specific legal or regulatory protections in the country of listing could prove to be of limited use with respect to the sovereign entity in extremis.
10. Furthermore, while this group of companies is not likely to be large, the scale of the opportunity, for example from privatisation transactions, is sufficient to justify the construction of a new category of the regime.

Costs

11. The requirements for the existing routes to premium and standard listing are not themselves changing and so neither are the costs. Introducing the new category simply creates a tailored route to the new premium listing category for those companies that meet its criteria and choose to pursue such a listing.

- 12. As with the above benefits, the costs an issuer faces in obtaining a listing in the new category may depend significantly on their circumstances. However, we do not judge that they materially differ from the costs a company would face in obtaining a conventional premium listing. Indeed, they will be lower to the extent they make any administrative savings relating to non-preparation of controlling shareholder agreements or not holding general meetings of shareholders to vote on whether to approve related party transactions with sovereign controlling shareholders.
- 13. However, in previous consultations regarding the Listing Rules, we have also noted an additional potential cost: that premium listed companies whose behaviour is not seen as meeting the high standards expected can undermine the perception of the regime as a whole. This could reduce the attractiveness to investors of the UK market and so may raise the cost of capital for all UK-listed issuers. However, we do not consider the changes we propose to create material risks. In addition, the new category within premium listing would be distinctly labelled and have clear criteria for admission and corresponding requirements on issuers. This would ensure investors knew what admission to that category required of the issuer, and they would be able to assess to what extent they were content to invest. On that basis, we think that any potential reputational risks to the premium listing brand, and to the UK markets more generally, should not arise.
- 14. For passive investors that argument requires a slightly different interpretation. From their perspective, if the companies in question were to be included in a widely followed existing index, this should in principle prompt an assessment of whether the eligibility criteria for, and constituents of, that index remain suitable and therefore on the overall benefits of continuing to follow that index. This might present a more challenging task for retail investors indirectly accessing the market. Active investors using an index as a benchmark will also be subject to pressures to justify any decisions, on perceived suitability grounds, to exclude such companies from their portfolios and risk greater volatility of performance relative to their chosen benchmark.
- 15. Decisions on index composition are, however, ones for index providers to take given their understanding of the requirements of their users for appropriate benchmarks related to available investments through the market. We do not therefore consider that material costs for investors should arise by virtue of admission of new companies to listing which then expand the range of available investment opportunities.

Annex 3

Compatibility statement

Compliance with legal requirements

1. This Annex records the FCA's compliance with a number of legal requirements applicable to the proposals in this consultation, including an explanation of the FCA's reasons for concluding that our proposals in this consultation are compatible with certain requirements under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (FSMA).
2. When consulting on new rules, the FCA is required by section 138I(2)(d) FSMA to include an explanation of why it believes making the proposed rules is (a) compatible with its general duty, under s. 1B(1) FSMA, so far as reasonably possible, to act in a way that is compatible with its strategic objective and advances one or more of its operational objectives, and (b) its general duty under s. 1B(5)(a) FSMA to have regard to the regulatory principles in s. 3B FSMA. The FCA is also required by s. 138K(2) FSMA to state its opinion on whether the proposed rules will have a significantly different impact on mutual societies as opposed to other authorised persons.
3. This Annex also sets out the FCA's view of how the proposed rules are compatible with the duty on the FCA to discharge its general functions (which include rule-making) in a way that promotes effective competition in the interests of consumers (s. 1B(4)). This duty applies in so far as promoting competition is compatible with advancing the FCA's consumer protection and/or integrity objectives.
4. In addition, this Annex explains how we have considered the recommendations made by the Treasury under s. 1JA FSMA about aspects of the economic policy of Her Majesty's Government to which we should have regard in connection with our general duties.
5. This Annex includes our assessment of the equality and diversity implications of these proposals.
6. Under the Legislative and Regulatory Reform Act 2006 (LRRRA) the FCA is subject to requirements to have regard to a number of high-level 'Principles' in the exercise of some of our regulatory functions and to have regard to a 'Regulators' Code' when determining general policies and principles and giving general guidance (but not when exercising other legislative functions like making rules). This Annex sets out how we have complied with requirements under the LRRRA.

The FCA's objectives and regulatory principles: Compatibility statement

7. The proposals set out in this consultation are primarily intended to advance the FCA's operational objective of protecting and enhancing the integrity of the UK financial system. They are also relevant to the FCA's operational objective of securing an appropriate degree of protection for consumers. We are doing this by consulting on a targeted proposal to make the listing regime work better for companies controlled by a shareholder that is a sovereign country. We think this will provide a route that will result in a greater number of companies exceeding the basic obligations of our standard listing regime while ensuring that the high standards of the existing premium listing regime are retained for all companies within the existing premium listing categories.

8. We consider these proposals are compatible with the FCA's strategic objective of ensuring that the relevant markets function well because they address evidence of a gap in the market for companies with characteristics of the type that will determine eligibility for the proposed new listing category. For the purposes of the FCA's strategic objective, 'relevant markets' are defined by s. 1F FSMA.
9. In preparing the proposals set out in this consultation, the FCA has had regard to the regulatory principles set out in s. 3B FSMA:
10. The need to use our resources in the most efficient and economic way: We consider that the proposals set out in this CP represent an efficient and economic use of our resources.
11. The principle that a burden or restriction should be proportionate to the benefits: Our proposals are designed to ensure that the protections of premium listing are well targeted, that the full suite of protections valued by investors in UK premium listed companies are not impaired and that companies in the new category can commit to and demonstrate compliance with those elements that are valued and relevant in their circumstances.
12. The general principle that consumers should take responsibility for their decisions: Our proposals are consistent with the principle that potential investors should take responsibility for their investment decisions while ensuring appropriate safeguards within our listing regime that would be relevant to a choice to invest in companies with the characteristics that would qualify for the new category.
13. The principle that we should exercise our functions as transparently as possible: We consider that the proposal to create specific listing categories that will cater effectively for eligible companies represents a transparent approach to the exercise of our functions and will clearly be preferable to a possible alternative approach of providing waivers for companies to access the existing premium listing segment.
14. In formulating these proposals, the FCA has had regard to the importance of taking action intended to minimise the extent to which it is possible for a business carried on (i) by an authorised person or a recognised investment exchange; or (ii) in contravention of the general prohibition, to be used for a purpose connected with financial crime (as required by s. 1B(5)(b) FSMA).

Expected effect on mutual societies

15. The FCA does not expect the proposals in this paper to have a significantly different impact on mutual societies as there are no relevant implications.

Compatibility with the duty to promote effective competition in the interests of consumers

16. In preparing the proposals as set out in this consultation, we have had regard to the FCA's duty to promote effective competition in the interests of consumers.

Equality and diversity

17. We are required under the Equality Act 2010 to 'have due regard' to the need to eliminate discrimination and to promote equality of opportunity in carrying out our policies, services and functions. As part of this, we conduct an equality impact assessment to ensure that the equality and diversity implications of any new policy proposals are considered.
18. The outcome of the assessment in this case is stated in paragraphs 2.17 to 2.20 of the Consultation Paper.

Legislative and Regulatory Reform Act 2006 (LRRRA)

19. We have had regard to the principles in the LRRRA for the parts of the proposals that consist of general policies, principles or guidance, and consider that our proposals are:
- Transparent: we are following a consultation process in proposing to make Handbook changes
 - Accountable: we are seeking feedback on our proposals from interested parties
 - Proportionate: we are proposing limited modifications to the premium listing regime that will not disturb the application of the full regime for existing listed companies unless they are eligible for the new category of listing and their independent shareholders sanction a change of listing category
 - Consistent: our proposals seek to apply our underlying premium listing principles in an effective manner
 - Targeted only at cases where action is needed: we are proposing a new category of listing that is relevant for a particular type of issuer.
20. We have had regard to the Regulators' Code for the parts of the proposals that consist of general policies, principles or guidance and consider that our proposals are consistent with the Code, including that all elements of guidance being proposed alongside new rules are designed to contribute to clarity of understanding and interpretation of our proposed new Handbook provisions.

Treasury Recommendations about economic policy

- 21. We consider that our proposals are consistent with the aspects of the government's economic policy to which the Financial Conduct Authority should have regard. They are of relevance, in particular, regarding competitiveness and the government's wish to ensure that the UK remains an attractive domicile for internationally active financial institutions, and that London retains its position as the leading international financial centre.

Premium Listing Principle 4	Where a listed company has more than one class of equity shares securities admitted to premium listing, the aggregate voting rights of the shares securities in each class should be broadly proportionate to the relative interests of those classes in the equity of the listed company .
Premium Listing Principle 5	A listed company must ensure that it treats all holders of the same class of its premium listed equity shares securities that are in the same position equally in respect of the rights attaching to those premium listed equity shares securities .
Premium Listing Principle 6	A listed company must communicate information to holders and potential holders of its premium listed equity shares securities in such a way as to avoid the creation of a false market in those premium listed equity shares securities .
