

Default

Information sheet

No.002

If you have been sent a default notice warning of potential action against you here is some important information to help.

Don't ignore the problem. There are things you can do and people who can help.

But you need to act NOW!

- Read the default notice carefully. It explains what you need to do, and what could happen if you don't respond. If you are not sure what it means, ask the lender or a debt adviser.
- Get free help and advice. Your rights and options depend on the type of agreement, and the law can be complex. You can get free independent help and advice from a number of organisations – see over for details.
- A debt adviser may be able to negotiate on your behalf. They can suggest ways to deal with the problem and to make sure the most important debts are paid first.
- You may be able to ask a court for more time to repay a debt – but only in some circumstances. Speak to a debt adviser before considering court action. Keep copies of letters and emails in case these are needed by the court.

If you don't do something quickly, the lender can take action against you.

For example, by demanding payment of money owed, or repossessing goods on hire-purchase. If the debt is secured against your home, you could lose your home. The default could stay on your credit file for six years, making it more difficult to get credit.

See over for details of where to get help and advice.
